To help raise awareness of the connection between civic engagement and health, the Civic Health Alliance has developed the Civic Health Compact. Through this Compact, we hope to aid health care delivery organizations in their efforts to integrate civic engagement into their policies and practices.
About CHA

The Civic Health Alliance (CHA) is a non-partisan coalition of health and civic leaders committed to a common cause: advancing America’s health through civic engagement in care settings and communities. We co-created the Civic Health Compact in partnership with health and civic leaders to support health care delivery organizations in optimizing civic engagement amongst their staff, patients, and communities.

The Civic Health Alliance, a non-partisan coalition of health and civic leaders advancing America’s health through civic engagement in care settings and communities, released The Civic Health Compact (Compact). The Compact is the first collective attempt at systematically incorporating civic engagement into institutional practices within health care delivery organizations.

As more health care organizations make equity a strategic priority, the Compact provides concrete and actionable steps to address some of the upstream drivers of health inequities. The inspiration and impetus for developing the Civic Health Compact is to offer health care leaders a clear and actionable approach to optimizing civic engagement amongst their staff, patients, and communities. As organizations operationalize the Civic Health Compact, we hope it fosters catalytic conversations and actions that accelerate collective improvements across the country in the health of our people and our democracy.

We would be grateful if you shared the Civic Health Compact with your network.
